

Nine Personality Types of the Enneagram

The Perfectionist: Their desire is to have integrity. Their fear is to be corrupt. They are conscious, ethical, moral and organized. They are in search of perfection.

The Loyalist: Their desire is to be secure. Their fear is having no support. They are reliable, hardworking and trustworthy. They are in search of grounding

The Helper: Their desire is to love and to be loved. Their fear is being love less. They are empathetic, sincere, warm-hearted and well meaning. They are in search of grounding.

The Enthusiast: Their desire is to be content. Their fear is being deprived. They are extroverted, optimistic, high spirited and practical. They are in search of experience.

The Achiever: Their Desire is to feel valuable. Their fear is to be worthless. They are ambitious, Energetic, Highly Driven and Authentic. They are in search of validation

The Challenger: Their desire is to feel strong. Their fear is being lifeless. They are self confident, strong, assertive and resourceful. They are in search of impact.

The Individualist: Their desire is to find truth. Their basic fear is to have no identity. They are self aware, sensitive, reserved, creative. They are in search of identity

The peacekeeper: Their desire is to have wholeness. Their fear is being disconnected. They are trusting, accepting, and stable supportive. They are in search of harmony.

The Investigator: Their basic desire is to understand reality. Their basic basic fear is having no ability to know what is true. They are alert, insightful, curious and alert. They are in search of mastery.

